

I WILL REMEMBER

[verse 1]

I will remember, that day I knew you were no longer mine
I will remember, the memories are burned deep in my mind
I will remember, the words you used to take yourself away
I will remember, but I wish I could forget the pain that came

When the morning broke with frost and the sun didn't shine so strong
In an afternoon you packed up, by the nighttime you were gone
So my day went down to darkness, will this night go down to dawn
In a life that goes on endlessly, with a lonely song

[chorus]

Some people fall and they never rise
Some people try but they always lose
Some people go hearing few goodbyes
Some people stay they see the end of the show

[bridge]

To look back on the good times can seem a lovely gift
But remembering the bad times can set your soul adrift
Forgetting lets things leave you and when it is reviled
It can drag you to the depths of a grieving heart run wild

[verse 2]

I will remember, the color of your eyes in morning light
I will remember, the feeling of your touch in the night
I will remember, the sound of your laughter on the air
I will remember, but I wish I could forget how much I cared

Well it doesn't matter to me where you put your head tonight
I'd just like to have some word from you and know that you're all right
And I'd try not to scare you with the feelings in my heart
Howling with the pain of my world torn apart

[chorus]

Some people fall and they never rise
Some people try but they always lose
Some people go hearing few goodbyes
Some people stay they see the end of the show

[coda]

I just wish our love could somehow start anew
And I wish you wished the same things that I do
I will remember, and I'll never lose the love I feel for you
Some people fall...
